The Elevator That Stops on Every Floor – A Lesson in Inclusive Leadership

During an inspiring session with the students and teachers of Class X and XII at Career Point Gurukul, Rajsamand, Mr. Rakesh Prasad Srivastav, Retired General Manager (HR, IR & EHS) from J.K. Tyres and Industries Ltd., shared a powerful perspective on leadership and inclusiveness. He compared leadership to an elevator that stops on every floor, emphasizing that while delays may seem frustrating, they often serve as opportunities for growth and collaboration.

He highlighted that true leadership isn't just about reaching one's own destination quickly but ensuring that others progress alongside. Patience, teamwork, and shared success make the journey more meaningful.

Mr. Srivastav also appreciated the efforts of the teachers, who were recognized on stage for their dedication in making the Annual Function a grand success, despite the challenging weather conditions with temperatures dropping close to 5°C.

His words left a lasting impact, reminding everyone that great leaders focus not only on their own goals but also on uplifting those around them. As he encouraged students to reflect on this, he posed an important question:

"Are you only focused on reaching your destination, or are you helping others get to theirs too?"

His insightful message continues to resonate, inspiring both students and teachers to embrace inclusive leadership and collective success.
